MANILA (Inquirer) — Dolphy's condition is stable, but still critical, according to his doctor, Dr. Cesar Lim. The actor, who is recovering from a heart attack, is expected to remain in the hospital for several more days. Lim said that Dolphy is now able to eat and drink, but still needs to be monitored closely. The actor's family is by his side, and they are all hopeful that he will make a full recovery. Dolphy has been in the hospital since he was admitted on Monday. He is currently in the intensive care unit, where he is being treated by a team of doctors. There are a number of reasons why the results of the study may be biased. First, the study was conducted in a single center, which may limit the generalizability of the findings. Second, the study was retrospective, which may introduce bias due to selection and recall. Third, the study did not include a control group, which may limit the ability to attribute the findings to the intervention. Finally, the study did not include a long-term follow-up, which may limit the ability to assess the long-term effects of the intervention.

P-Noy on mining EO: Governors can go to court

By Christine M. Amabile
and Thomas E. Cullen
Special to ENR.com

In his first major executive action, President Benigno Aquino III has ordered the suspension of the executive order that allows mining in national parks and other protected areas.

Mr. Aquino was quoted by the press as saying that he was "not going to allow the mining of national parks and other protected areas."

He also said that he was "not going to allow the mining of national parks and other protected areas."

China says Aseda shouldn't be told of major partners

MANILA, Philippines — China's Foreign Ministry on Monday said it would not disclose the names of its major partners in the Aseda project, a controversial infrastructure project in the Philippines. The ministry's statement came in response to a request from the Philippine government to provide more details about the project's partners. China's Foreign Ministry spokesman said that the project is a complex one, involving many different parties, and that the names of the major partners are not yet finalized. He added that the project is a long-term one, and that the names of the major partners will be disclosed as the project progresses.

Pakistani Filipina women in New World Philippines

MANILA, Philippines — A group of Pakistani women, mostly from the Punjab province, are working in the Philippines, according to a report from the Philippine Department of Labor. The women are working in various sectors, including manufacturing, services, and agriculture. They are mostly employed by local companies and are paid in Philippine pesos. The report also mentions that the women are facing some challenges, such as language barriers and discrimination, but they are generally satisfied with their work and the wages they receive.

Economic growth for all

No Free Lunch

It's a common refrain these days that the world is flat. But it's not. The world is still a place of great inequality, and the gap between the rich and the poor is widening. The rich are getting richer, and the poor are getting poorer. This is not a new phenomenon. It's a timeless one. The only way to ensure that everyone has a chance to succeed is to create an environment where everyone has the same opportunities. This means investing in education, healthcare, and infrastructure. It means creating a level playing field where everyone can compete. It means ensuring that the fruits of economic growth are shared by all. Because if the growth is only for a few, then it's not growth at all. It's just a few people getting richer while everyone else stays poor. And that's not a recipe for a stable, prosperous world.

Turkey takes Syria's downing of jet to Nato

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Turkey's parliament on Tuesday passed a resolution demanding that the United States and other NATO allies provide it with the military equipment and personnel needed to defend itself against the threat posed by the Syrian regime's use of chemical weapons.

The resolution, which was passed by a vote of 327 to 10, also calls for the United States and other NATO allies to provide Turkey with the necessary intelligence and logistical support to carry out its operations in Syria.

The resolution was passed in the context of a series of attacks on Turkish territory by Syrian regime forces, including the downing of a Turkish jet on Tuesday.

RE, not coal, is energy agency's focus, says exec

By Ben L. Williams

TO WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) is focusing on renewable energy, not coal, as the key to meeting the nation's growing energy needs, a top FERC official said Tuesday.

Commission Chairman James W. Watson said the agency's primary mission is to ensure a reliable, secure and affordable energy supply for the nation. He noted that while coal has been a traditional source of energy, the focus is now on developing renewable resources like wind, solar and hydro.

"We are looking at the full range of energy options," Watson said. "But the emphasis is on those sources that are sustainable and have the potential to meet the long-term needs of the country."

The FERC is currently reviewing several proposals for new renewable energy projects. These include a large-scale wind farm in the Great Plains and a solar power plant in the Southwest. The agency is also working to streamline the permitting process for these projects to get them up and running as quickly as possible.

Watson emphasized that the FERC's role is to regulate the interstate transmission of energy, not to decide which sources are used. That decision, he said, is left to the market and the states.

Despite the focus on renewables, the FERC is not ignoring coal. It is still reviewing proposals for new coal-fired power plants. However, Watson said, the agency is more likely to approve projects that incorporate advanced technologies to reduce emissions.

The FERC's decisions are subject to review by the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals. The agency's actions are also closely watched by Congress and the public.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) is focusing on renewable energy, not coal, as the key to meeting the nation's growing energy needs, a top FERC official said Tuesday.

Responsible mining seen as key to curbing power

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) is focusing on responsible mining as a key to curbing power costs, a top FERC official said Tuesday.

Commission Chairman James W. Watson said the agency is working to ensure that the mining industry follows strict environmental and safety standards. He noted that responsible mining practices can help reduce the environmental impact of energy production and ensure a sustainable supply of resources.

"We are committed to working with the mining industry to develop best practices," Watson said. "This will help us ensure that our energy sources are both reliable and environmentally sound."

The FERC is currently reviewing several proposals for new mining projects. These include a large-scale coal mine in the West and a uranium mine in the Midwest. The agency is also working to streamline the permitting process for these projects to get them up and running as quickly as possible.

Watson emphasized that the FERC's role is to regulate the interstate transmission of energy, not to decide which sources are used. That decision, he said, is left to the market and the states.

Sun protects student plans from going overboard with internet charges

A student group in Manila has been able to keep its plans from going overboard with internet charges, thanks to the intervention of a local government official.

The group, known as the Sun Group, was formed by a group of students from the Sun Group, who were planning to launch a website to promote the group's activities. However, the website's launch was delayed due to the high cost of internet charges.

The group's plans were threatened by the high cost of internet charges, which were estimated to be around $100,000. The group's plans were threatened by the high cost of internet charges, which were estimated to be around $100,000.

1. Chlorophyll a and Chlorophyll b were determined using a spectrophotometer (Shimadzu UV-160U) at 663 nm and 646 nm, respectively. The concentrations were calculated using the following equations:  $\text{Chlorophyll } a = 11.85 \times \text{OD}_{663} - 1.54 \times \text{OD}_{646}$  and  $\text{Chlorophyll } b = 22.9 \times \text{OD}_{646} - 4.68 \times \text{OD}_{663}$  (Arar and Parsons 1995).
